The Hanslik & Moniz Experiment has come to town and dipped their musical toes into the vast expanding waters of the singles ocean, and has done so by creating one of the most addictive offerings I have heard for a long while.

An electronic backdrop is the consistent and onward narrative, mixed with a curious bubble effect that seems to just swirl all around. The driving bass and electronic wizardry on keyboards is utterly mesmerising; trust me, this is one of those pieces that you start to play and keep on hitting repeat because it truly does get into your musical headspace. I have a feeling that Hanslik & Moniz Experiment with Outside Man are onto a winner here, and a big chart presence is going to be felt very soon with this creation.
