

Liquid Dreams

By

David Hollandsworth

Written by

Steve Sheppard

There comes a time when an artist sends you a track in for review, you know of their work from previous encounters and this gives you an expectation of the tones you are about to dive head long into. However when I was asked to review this latest single by electronic maestro David Hollandsworth I was literally blown away by it, this has to be the single most work of brilliance by the artist thus far.

Fortunately the artist has created a fifteen minute opus of genius within this piece called Liquid Dreams, it's chill out styled ethic, mixed with his electronic wizardry has manifested one of the most fluent, graphic and utterly listenable pieces given to me this year.

Fifteen minutes I hear you say in shock, but believe me each and every second of this masterpiece you will enjoy to the max, the melody is magical, the smoothness of tone a sublime delight, quite frankly if this doesn't make number one I will be amazed.