Graeme Drum is having a lot of success at the moment with his latest album Eclectic, it's really raising the rhythms, and now the artist has released to the world an incredibly vibrant single entitled, Peruvian Vibe which features the talents of Anneke Dawson & British Exploring Society.

This offering is both incredibly powerful in its rhythmic pulsating energies, but the flute here is amazingly intense in its overall vibe. If this isn't a single that will get your body moving, then I don't know what is.

Drum's mastery on percussion is becoming well known and once more he shows in prowess and his passion for all things percussive on this release.

Peruvian Vibe is a wonderfully fluent, yet organic single, packed full of energy and ripe, with such musical colour and excitement; this is one of those compositions that you will probably want to leave on repeat for a few spins, its build and progression are a delight and a pleasure to sample and one thoroughly recommended to brighten up your day with.
