

Morning Embrace

By

Carl Borden

Written by

Steve Sheppard

There are some artists that provoke a response so powerful and emotional when one hears about the possible release of a new album, that when that day finally arrives it makes one feel complete and once more musically whole again, Carl Borden is one of those artists.

I began my musical voyage with Borden back in 2017 with the release of the quite beautiful album Breathe. Now he is back with a charismatic new offering entitled Morning Embrace. Listening to this release is like taking a warm shower first thing in the morning, allowing the music like the water to simply wash over you.

Each track is an emotive pleasure park of genius, with pieces like the fluent Drift Away and the moving Journey's End, being but two composition's that struck a musical chord with me, and then that blank canvas of brilliance the title track, which was sublime and lush with colours of tone and sound that could have fallen from heaven itself. Morning Embrace is indeed a moment to treasure.

Carl Borden has once more pulled from the expansive realm of his musical mind, an album of music that soothes the soul, calms the mind and brings warmth to the heart.

You simply cannot go wrong with a Carl Borden release, it's a musical gift from a man who really knows how to create utter ambience, which makes Morning Embrace was one the most easily recommended albums of the year so far, this is an absolute must for your collection.