The sheer ambience and heart felt love through music that Anaamaly creates with each composition is blissful. His latest offering entitled Morning Air is truly a single you would love to wake up to, and one to celebrate the fact that you can once more breathe life into another new day of existence.

Morning Air literally hovers with expectancy, close your eyes and you can literally feel each and every fragment of your reality coming into existence as you listen, the very fabric of time is created around you with this offering, it is that good.

The vocals of Sanna Pirita are almost otherworldly in energy, but harness a harmonic resonance in a symbiotic partnership with the artist himself, one that I am sure will wash over the listeners with an open heart and an eager mind. This is a wonderfully magical release, one that sparkles with the energy of a new beginning.
