Tim Neumark has really been in touch with his musical muse lately and has forged many a chart position with his 2019 single offerings, once more into the breach he goes again, but this time it is a really charming and light hearted composition called Bows in the Mirror, that we are treated to.

The art work of the single speaks volumes, showing the heads of two young girls and from the artists vantage point he sees, two bows in his mirror. This is such a nice performance and one that is brimming with the excitement and freedom of a happiness you can only achieve at that young age.

The sublime warmth which this piece is played is also a joy to listen to, it is one of those tracks that will guarantee to lift your day and bring a smile to your face. Neumark's muse has done it again, another sure fire hit me thinks.
